Removing Specific Characters from a String - XSLT Cookbook ...

`translate()` is a versatile string function that is often used to compensate for missing string-processing capabilities in XSLT. Here you use the fact that `translate()` will not copy characters in the input string that are in the from string but do not have a corresponding character in the to string.

White Space - msdn.microsoft.com

If there is a DTD for the document, attributes that are declared to be of types other than CDATA have spaces removed from the beginning and end of the attribute value; all white space clusters inside the value are replaced with single spaces. If there is no DTD, the parser assumes that all attributes are of type CDATA.
