In general, the connection between finance and politics has been under-researched for years, and the goal of this conference is precisely to motivate more research. I think there is a need to apply more creative and different approaches.

Andrew Dilley offers a major new study of financial dependence, examining the connections this dependence forged between the City and political life in Edwardian Australia and Canada, mediated by ideas of political economy. In doing so he reconstructs the occasionally imperialistic politic of finance which pervaded the British World at this time.

Political finance - GSDRC

Party finance: disclosure and controls. Many controls have been suggested to curb corruption in political finance.

These include public financing of political parties and the introduction of limits on contributions, spending and campaign time.
