Some noncoding DNA regions, called introns, are located within protein-coding genes but are removed before a protein is made. Regulatory elements, such as enhancers, can be located in introns. Other noncoding regions are found between genes and are known as intergenic regions.

In addition, TEs can be a source of non-coding RNAs, such as long non-coding RNAs (lncRNAs) or miRNAs. Computational and experimental studies have shown that LINE (e.g. LINE-1, LINE-2, LINE-3), SINE (e.g. MIR and Alu), and some LTR transposons, can act as miRNA sources [8 10]. miR-28, miR-95, and miR-151 are examples of functionally validated miRNAs that are derived from LINE-2 (L2)
