For the record I don't have a dog but did grow up with a dog and like them (while also liking cats). What I don't have is a willingness to access my own emotions and memories in order to use them to make up for the inadequacy of the film which, with all due respect, a lot of people seem to be doing when they talk about why they love the film. So I understand what it is to have a dog as a Marley and Me: Life and Love With the World's Worst Dog by ...

At first glance, John Grogan's Marley and Me appears to be a feel good novel for the dog loving population. However, as an active member of that population, it is a disappointing example of the multiple wrongs many people engage in when raising a puppy.

Thus, I came to John Grogan's Marley & Me, a memoir about a man and his dog, without much pro-dog sentiment. This makes me unusual, apparently Grogan's book has occupied the No. 1 spot on ### Amazon.ca:Customer reviews: Marley & Me: Life and Love ...

Marley and Me is a remarkable story of man and the love and trust of dog. I enjoyed every chapter of it. It is so hilarious and easy to relate to by any dog owner that has or had a dog of character. The author came close to Jack London in bringing out the character in the dog and does something extraordinary in the dog's domestic nature or exploits. Unlike the dog story in Usurper and Other
